

The Kiko Meat Goat

Basil Bactawar,

Roraima Feeds (Summit Livestock Nutrition)

Racecourse Road, Bush Lot Farm, Corentyne, Guyana

This breed was imported from New Zealand in the 1990's into the USA. Their coats are generally white but can be any color from white to black. They have large frames and are known to mature early. In developing the breed, the does were selected for their hardiness under range conditions with no kidding assistance, their mothering ability and their ability to have twins annually. They are generally well suited for meat goat production under humid and subtropical conditions. On average, the does wean approximately 1.6 to 1.8 kids with an average litter weight of 62 to 67 lbs. at 90 days old. This breed is generally more resistant to internal parasites, especially the barber pole worm, than the other breeds.
